AN EMBLEM OF WORTH.

Even some of our competitors advertise the value of our name and reputation. Often strangers have entered other jewelry stores and have been told that they were in Leyson's in answer to their question, "Is this Leyson's?"

This is a common practice of one jeweler of no enviable reputation for integrity, and they undoubtedly get some temporary profit masquerading as our shadow. We wish to warn the public against this deceit at this holiday time and caution all to look for the Emblem of Worth over our door and see that it says Leyson's before entering. We are ready to guarantee the value of goods sold over our own counters and enclosed in our own boxes and cases, but assume no responsibility for the defective watch and jewelry work done or the inferior jewelry sold by others who masquerade as representatives of J. H. Leyson Co. at the expense of their own honor and their customer's eventual disgust.

This season has been a fortunate one for our buyer. He prophesied some consternation among local jewelers regarding business conditions this fall and as he expected most houses have polished up their old stuff, hoping a discriminating public will buy it for new goods. Expecting this our buyer bought more lavishly than ever, and particularly of lines imported exclusively for us and of choice pieces of jewelry and diamond goods, and today it is acknowledged by everyone we have visited us that our stock is the finest ever shown in the intermountain country and worthy to be shown in the largest centers in America.

We do not take advantage of the fact that we have no competitors on most of our lines by charging fancy prices, but will guarantee our prices to any buyer to be as low as those quoted on the same class of goods anywhere.

Remember, a Christmas gift in a Leyson Box makes doubly pleased the recipient? Thousands of people try to buy our boxes in which to put inferior goods bought elsewhere, hoping to add charm to the gift that Leyson's name always carries.

We sell any legitimate line sold in large jewelry houses and many that are carried only by the most exclusive dealers and we invite all to visit us if for no other purpose than that which would inspire a visit to an art gallery.
